SURVIVORS
COMPETITORS

Pink Steel is a dragon boat racing team for breast cancer survivors with Steel City Dragon Boat Association, Inc., a non-profit support & recreational program. This Pittsburgh BCS team was founded in 2005, in honor of Carol Raber, to provide a unique floating support group and healthful program for breast cancer survivors. We enhance the lives of survivors by promoting physical health and joy through shared experiences of exercise, community and team bonding.

A dragon boat is a 40 foot canoe with a dragon motif and crew of 22. As one steers and one drums a cadence, 20 paddle in unison. Dragon boating has its roots in ancient Chinese culture, and in its modern form, is the fastest growing water sport in the world.

The unique sport of dragon boat racing has been shown in the medical field to benefit the recovery issues associated with breast cancer.

This tournament celebrates survivorship and will provide funding for the continued growth and development of this program in addition to supporting national and international competition.

In October 2014, Pink Steel placed 1st in the country and 2nd in the world in Sarasota, Florida.
